LIBERAL WINS CRUCIAL FEDERAL POLLS TEST

INCOME TAX IN GREAT BRITAIN TO BE REDUCED

Budget Provides For 10 Per Cent Cut on Smaller Salaries; Civil Servants to Have Half of Pay Cut Restored July 1; Chancellor Neville Chamberlain Announces Government Surplus on Last Fiscal Year $195,000,000

AUTO LICENSE RATES TO BE CUT

By Frank H. King
Associated Press Foreign Staff
London, April 17.—The public to-day received a gift of sixpence in the pound reduction of income taxes—a reduction, in the case of small incomes, of approximately 10 per cent.
The reduction was announced by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in telling the House of Commons and a cheering throng of spectators of his budget for 1934-35.
He further declared one-half of the 10 per cent pay cuts suffered by government employees would be restored July 1, and that unemployment relief, cut in 1931, would be fully restored at the same time.
He said that with the first of the year the present automobile license would be cut 25 per cent from its present rate of £1 per one horsepower.
SURPLUS $195,000,000
He announced in the fiscal year just ending, Great Britain had run up a surplus on its government operation of £39,000,000—approximately $195,000,000—and the ensuing year should show Great Britain with a profit of £29,000,000—or $145,000,000.
He said at the present time it was impossible to contemplate a reduction of indirect taxation.
He stated that during the last fiscal year employment increases reduced relief payments by $16,500,000, less revenue was $15,000,000 over the estimates. Tax and sugar revenue was over, however, lower revenue was expected from duties in the coming year as inter-imperial trade increases in proportion to heavier tax foreign imports.
The Chancellor told the House he did not propose to make any provision for the payments of war debts or the receipt of war debts from Great Britain's debtors.

UNIVERSITY TO HONOR PROMINENT CANADIANS

At a special convocation on June 6, the University of Toronto will honor a cardinal—the only churchman of that rank in Canada—a provincial Premier, in addition to several other well-known people. Left, Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec, on whom will be conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws (honoris causa), to mark the 40th anniversary of the landing of Jacques Cartier at Gaspé. Right, Hon. L. P. D. Tilley, Premier of New Brunswick, who will receive a similar degree in commemoration of the coming of the Loyalists to New Brunswick, the founding of that province, and the landing of the first Loyalists in Ontario 150 years ago.

SHIP IN PORT; INSULL GUARDED

Associated Press
St. Euxonia, Catania, Sicily, April 17.—This was Burton Y. Berry's busy day in his job of guarding Samuel Insull.
While the Exilona put into Catania to take on freight, Berry, United States official, stalked Insull everywhere in the fear he might attempt to leave the ship.
The chase of the grinning old captive led from deck to saloon, to cabin, to deck—and back again.
The captain said that, as a precautionary measure, the Exilona would not put into port at night at any stop during the month-long journey.

Lumbering, Mining, Agriculture Represented on Advisory Board With Legal and Medical Talent; Start Work Immediately on Wide Range of Problems

Six members of British Columbia's Economic Council which will lay the foundation for planned economy in the province's industrial and social life were chosen by the provincial cabinet this morning. Premier Pattullo made the announcement.
One or two others may be appointed at a future date.
Those named to-day are: James O. Nicholls, Nanaimo; James G. Robson, New Westminster; Thomas W. Bingley, Trail; James H. Lawson, Vancouver; Percival E. French, Vernon, and Dr. H. C. Wrench, Hazelton.
Professor W. A. Carrothers is chairman of the council.
A wide variety of viewpoints is included in the composite body and the members will bring a fund of knowledge to bear upon problems of B.C.'s basic industries, combining both the practical and theoretical sides.
Mr. Nicholls is connected with the coal mining industry and Mr. Bingley, of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company at Trail, has lengthy experience with that work. Mr. Robson is a lumber man and Mr. French, an agriculturist. Mr. Lawson is a lawyer. Dr. Wrench, a medical man, is a former member of the Legislature.
TO START RIGHT AWAY
A comprehensive list of problems for the Economic Council to tackle has been prepared in the preliminary work by the resident staff, which consists, in addition to the chairman, of Russell Shanahan, B.A. Com., and Bernice McCartney, B.A. Com. The council will start immediately upon some of the matters demanding urgent attention.

PLANE REBUILT IN NORTH FLIES

Dawson Creek, B.C., April 17.—Bully damaged in a forced landing last fall in the upper Halfway River country, a Chicago plane, which was rebuilt during the winter, was brought to a safe landing in Dawson Creek by Pilot A. Bannell this morning.
Capt. Simmons and Mrs. Paul Rossback accompanied Bannell to Dawson Creek. He was to return later to-day to bring out Paul Rossback and two other men left at the northern camp.
No damage was believed to have been done, but the Oranage County courthouse swayed and almost every one left the building.
The shock was felt at 10:33 a.m.

CABINET OFF FOR OTTAWA

Hon. A. Wells Gray to Be Acting Premier During Absence of Mr. Pattullo

Leading the British Columbia delegation on its way east to Ottawa, Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Finance, left yesterday, and Attorney-General Sloan will entrain eastward with him this evening.
Premier Pattullo is expected to follow to-morrow or Thursday.
In addition to the specific reasons for the trip to Ottawa each of the ministers will have problems connected with their own departments to discuss in the capital.
Dr. Weir is not expected back until the middle of next month, as he intends to take up matters such as state health, insurance, textbooks and social services.
Mr. Hart will handle the new unemployment relief agreement negotiations in the east as well as the financial question.
The cabinet held its final meeting before departure this morning.
Holding the governmental reins in the absence of the delegation will be Hon. A. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands, who will be acting Premier. Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture; Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Mines and Labor, and Hon. F. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works.

NEW SCALE IS NOW IN FORCE

Men Working With Females in Same Occupation Must Receive Minimum Wage

Officials administering the new female Minimum Wage Act pointed out this morning that changes made under this measure require the payment of female minimum wage scales to men who are employed in similar occupations without any further notice from the Board of Industrial Relations.
There has, apparently, been a good deal of misunderstanding on this point, and while some employers have raised wages of male employees in line with the act, others have delayed pending the receipt of orders from the board.
However, the new act specifically states that all orders passed under the former Minimum Wage Act shall continue in force. It is placed upon employers to raise wages of men on the same basis as women who are eligible for the minimum wage where the men are working in the same occupation. In addition it brings boys under eighteen years of age in the same category as girls under that age.
The act and the orders pursuant to it became law on March 29, when it was assented to by the Lieutenant-Governor.

LIBERALS TO SELECT SOON

Number of Names Mentioned For Candidature For Dominion House

Victoria Liberals to-day were reported preparing the ground for choice of a candidate to contest this seat in the forthcoming federal general election.
While the nominating convention is not expected for a month or two, pending more definite information as to when the election may be held, prospective candidates have been discussed on several sides.
W. H. Kinsman, president of the Victoria Liberal Association, and J. B. Clearwater, both candidates in the recent provincial contest, are mentioned as possibilities for the nomination. Some would like to see Byron "Boss" Johnson, who topped the polls in the provincial election with record vote, go to the federal capital Stuart Henderson, who contested the seat twice before, is also a possible candidate, as well as W. T. Strath, a school trustee and former member of the City Council, with a long record of public service.

EARTH SHOCKS IN CALIFORNIA TO-DAY

People in Santa Ana Leave Homes and Office Buildings as Tremors Felt

Associated Press
Santa Ana, Cal., April 17.—A severe earthquake shock caused persons to leave their homes and office buildings in Santa Ana to-day.
No damage was believed to have been done, but the Orange County courthouse swayed and almost every one left the building.
The shock was felt at 10:33 a.m.

FLOODS EASING IN EASTERN CANADA

Canadian Press
Montreal, April 17.—After three days of floods with damage mounting into thousands of dollars, rivers of eastern Canada gradually receded to-day from high water level marks. As the waters abated residents of scattered, low-lying sections of Quebec, N.-B. Brunswick and Nova Scotia slowly returned to normal life after floods had inundated highways, railway lines and cellars and carried away lumber, small cottages and railway ties with ice blocks crushing to pieces boats, boat-houses and wharfs.

VOTE HELD SIGNIFICANT

Ottawa Sees By-election Result Indicating Bennett's Days Are Numbered

Special to The Times
Ottawa, April 17.—Extraordinary significance in both Liberal and Conservative Party camps is attached to the by-election result yesterday in South Oxford, won by the Liberal, A. S. Rennie, with a majority of 1,530 over Hon. Donald Sutherland, candidate of the Bennett government.
South Oxford, embracing both farming and urban industrial interests, has been set down by the strategists of both parties as representing accurately a cross-section of the country's opinion.
Monday's result, coming on top of recent Liberal victories in by-elections such as widely separated areas as New Brunswick, Quebec and Saskatchewan, is regarded on all sides here as a sure indication that the days of the Bennett government are numbered.
The government was very anxious to win this election and turned its massive campaigning artillery into the fight, including three cabinet ministers. In spite of all efforts, however, the Bennett candidate was beaten by a majority which was 218 larger than the majority obtained by the Unionist government candidate in the war election of 1917.
Whether yesterday's result will force an immediate general election, in line with traditional British practice up to this time, remains to be seen. With certain defeat looming for them in the country, many of the Bennett group favor deferring an election as long as possible.

INDICATES LIBERAL POLICY

Besides being accepted as an indication of the temper of the country, the result is held significant because of what it reveals in the way of Liberal policy in the next campaign. R. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, waged the fight against the Bennett government on the broad question of the preservation of the fundamentals of representative government. Mr. King opposed the Bennett black cheque and the cabinet's question of the preservation of the fundamentals of representative government without the constitutional consideration of Parliament. He called for the return to Parliament of its absolute control of the expenditure of public money.

PLAN TO SHARE BANK PROFITS

Scheme Laid Before Commons Committee By Major C. H. Douglas

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 17.—A plan to share bank profits with depositors and borrowers was described to the Commons banking committee to-day by Major C. H. Douglas, English author of the Douglas Plan of Social Credit. For two hours, like a professor conducting a class in higher economics, he appeared as a witness to-day before the committee reviewing bank legislation.
Swiftly Major Douglas sketched a

Issue in Constituency Where A. S. Rennie Defeated Hon. D. Sutherland Yesterday Was Bennett Administration and Its Policies, Says Liberal Leader; Result Is Clear Indication of Feeling of People of Canada Toward Subversion of Their Parliamentary Institutions, Declares Leader

Ottawa, April 17.—The victory of A. S. Rennie, Liberal, in the federal by-election in South Oxford, Ont., yesterday is a clear indication a change of government is desired throughout Canada, says Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader.
Commenting on the result of the by-election, Mr. King issued the following statement:
"The issue in South Oxford was the government and its policies. It was generally conceded the result of the by-election would be indicative of the feeling of the country towards the present administration. It will be recalled that the Prime Minister, referring to the vacancy occasioned by the death of the late member, stated in the House of Commons that in his judgment the electors of South Oxford were 'the finest representatives of the finest type of Canadian citizenship.'
"Having regard to the questions most generally discussed in the campaign, it can scarcely be denied the verdict in South Oxford is an expression of the conscience of the people with respect to the subversion of their parliamentary institutions and of their desire for a change of policies and a change of government."

Great Entry List For Festival In Victoria In May

Programme Completed Last Night Reveals Interesting Competitions Daily; Band Competition Will Be Headliner; United States Entries Give International Flavor

With an entry list of 820 persons, Victoria's annual musical festival will get under way at the First United Church at 9 o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, May 1. Mayor Leeming will formally open it that evening. The entry list is far ahead of last year. Competitors will come here from Seattle, Yakima, New Westminster, Vancouver and many island centres.
Numerous Victorians have been awaiting announcement by the festival committee of the programme. It was completed last night, and was released for publication this morning.
The band competition will be a special feature of this year's festival. As there is no band class at the Vancouver festival, the Pacific Coast competition will be held at Victoria. The adult vocal class is most encouraging, but the choral work is not so satisfactory.
The final concert this year will be held at the Royal Victoria Theatre on the evening of Saturday, May 7, commencing at 8 o'clock. The finalists of the week will be heard and the many handsome cups and trophies will be presented at this event.
Judges at the festival will be: Dr. Percy C. Hull of Hereford, Thomas P. Dunhill of London, Professor Colquhoun of the University of Saskatchewan, Miss Stanley D. Skene of Calgary, and Mrs. Cotsworth-Clarke of Vancouver.

RELIEF BILL VOTED BY M.P.'S

Commons Passes Measure, 83 to 37, and Sends It to Senate

Ottawa, April 17.—With the lengthy debate in the Commons on the Relief Bill completed and the measure given third reading, it is now before the senate for action. Passage by the Upper House is necessary before the Dominion government will have authority to pay relief bills that have been accumulating since March 31, when last year's act expired.
HOW MEMBERS VOTED
Third reading was given in the Commons yesterday evening by a vote of 83 to 37. The C.C.F. party split in the division. J. S. Woodsworth and Angus MacInnis, voting with the Liberals, were somewhat different, giving Mr. Sutherland a majority of 1,620.
ELECTION OF 1930
In the general election of 1930, the late Mr. Cayley scored a narrow victory over Mr. Sutherland. Minister of Agriculture in the war-time Union Government and the member of the Meighen Cabinet.
The margin in 1930 was fifty-five votes. In 1926—Mr. Cayley won Mr. Sutherland by 709 votes. In none

BREAD CODE IN PROVINCE SOUGHT

Industrial Board Takes Up One Phase, But Not Price Control

Master bakers of British Columbia seeking a price code for bread well as regulations governing hours work and wage minimums, the board of Industrial Relations was informed yesterday by a delegation headed by Fred J. Elkins, secretary-manager of their association.
Price control, however, does not come within the jurisdiction of the board, but it will take up, at a later date, hours of work and wages.
The delegation informed the board of the main trouble in the industry is the using of bread as "bait" for customers by big stores and chain stores.
As market control comes within the Industrial Products Marketing Act, which has not yet become law, the bakers expect to take this up under a heading later.

Compulsory Principle Raises Objections as Government Measure Is Launched in Debate in Commons

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 17.—With the unemployment relief bill finally approved after a prolonged and stubborn opposition, the Bennett government to-day faces another battle in the House of Commons, this time over Hon. Robert Weir's Natural Products Marketing Act. No sooner was the bill moved for second reading yesterday evening than Liberal speakers served notice it was not altogether to their liking and would not pass without a stiff fight.
Basically, the bill would establish a central board to regulate marketing of natural products and certain manufactured goods. Groups of producers, for instance fruit growers, could apply to the board for permission to regulate their own marketing. This would be accomplished through a local board within the fruit-growing industry and would involve provincial boards with geographical limitations.

Japan Objects To Sales Of Planes By Nations To China

Tokio Foreign Drafts Statement Clarifying Japan's Policy Toward Republic; Nippon Declared Guardian of Peace

Associated Press
Tokio, April 17.—The Associated Press learned from a high official source to-day that a "re-statement and clarification" of Japan's policy toward China has been drafted by the Foreign Office.
The document, it was learned, has been submitted to Foreign Minister Koki Hirota for approval, and will be communicated shortly to the Japanese minister at Nanking and to all other Japanese officials now in China.
The draft can be summarized as a statement of Japan's insistence that she holds special responsibility to maintain the peace in East Asia and to determine China's contacts with other powers shall not be of such a nature as to jeopardize that peace.

Russian Working For World Revolution Loses Haven in That Country

Canadian Press and Associated Press
Paris, April 17.—Leon Trotsky, exiled Russian revolutionist, ordered to leave France by the government to-day because of his efforts to organize a world revolution.

Japan Objects To Sale Of Planes By Nations To China

In order that other powers may "fully understand, an official spokesman said, the draft probably will be communicated to Japanese ambassadors in other capitals to serve as a basis for explanations to the governments to which they are accredited.

BAN ON PLANES
The draft declares: "Japan must object when efforts to aid China take the form of aid from the furnishing of military advisers and instructors, and the granting of political loans."

There are many United States aviators in China at the present time selling airplanes and instructing Chinese fliers.

What Japan desires primarily, the official said, is for other powers to recognize her unique position as guardian of the peace in East Asia. He declared that Japan had no intention of renouncing the four-power consortium that Great Britain, the United States, France and Japan formed in 1920 to lend to China.

The spokesman declared Japan considered China as gravely in danger of partition as she was at the end of the nineteenth century when Russia, Great Britain, Germany and France were, he said, staking out claims on Chinese territory.

MEDICAL RELIEF AID

Calgary, April 17 (Canadian Press)—Despite the refusal of federal aid, the city of Calgary will grant $24,000 a year to the Medical Society here for services rendered relief recipients. It is hoped the provincial government will contribute a like sum.

RELIEF BILL VOTED BY M.P.'S

Spencer, Robert Gardiner, George Coote, E. J. Garland, William Lucas, Adolph Luchowicz, William Irvine and A. M. Carmichael supported the government. Miss Agnes MacPhail, U.F.O., voted with the Liberals. One other, Humphrey Mitchell, was paired but announced he would have opposed the bill.

WANTED SUM STATED

In another division yesterday evening, the government had a majority of forty-seven against a Liberal motion to send the bill back to committee for deletion of offending clauses. Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King proposed inclusion of a definite sum to cover relief expenditures, thus relieving parliament of the authority over taxation and deletion of the wide powers taken by the government under which regulations could be made by order-in-council for the "peace, order and good government" of the country.

B.N.A. ACT REVISION

"That is what we have been urging all along," said Mr. King, referring to B.N.A. amendments. Since the Liberal government had introduced changes so the Dominion could have control of the administration of social services, he suggested a committee be appointed to study the B.N.A. Act. Like every other member of the opposition, he was appalled at the government's arrangement with Trotsky, who had lived through his worst months without their knowing it, raised the villa last Sunday.

A nation-wide clamor of protest for expulsion of Trotsky developed immediately after the public had learned of his mysterious Barbizon hideaway.

M. Sauraut declined to say whether Trotsky would be permitted to return to Canada, whether he would be compelled to quit French territory entirely.

"WORM IN FRUIT"
The Nationalist press demanded the immediate deportation of the man from producing as installed "like a worm in the fruit" in one of the loveliest spots in the country.

It was charged Trotsky had been actively promoting his "Fourth International" through the Russian review, the Bulletin of the Opposition, which he is openly conducting in Paris.

Trotsky already has formed in France, the Nationalist press asserted, "neo-Communist leagues" and "centres of action," whose objective is a "general strike and the overthrow of the present government."

Trotsky's whole programme, the principal objective of which is permanent revolution, aims at rallying extremist groups into a united front.

GIVEN GUARDS
Threats by White Russians gained Trotsky the assurance of safe conduct from his Barbizon refuge. Police said he would be conducted out of the country "with the greatest discretion and the utmost secrecy."

His expulsion is likely within twenty-four hours, an official indicated.

plan, similar to one he had laid before the Nationalist government and which he filed in detail with the committee. His provisions were drastic. Bank dividends would be limited to 8 per cent per annum, the rate usually received by private banks but much lower than the rate for commercial institutions.

TWO ACCOUNTS
Creation of two suspense accounts from profits over and above the 8 per cent dividend was another step in the plan. Finally, the plan provided that a proportion of credit in suspense accounts should be used for reduction of customers' overdrafts, and decreasing or reimbursing interest paid on customers' overdrafts.

The plan also envisioned application of the same principle to insurance companies. In the case of insurance companies, the proportion of profits would be utilized in the purchase of preference or debenture stocks to be allotted pro rata to applicants.

CONTROLLED BY BANKS
It was a fact, said the quiet-spoken engineer-economist that 75 or 80 per cent of the assets of the world were in the control, direct or indirect, of banks and insurance companies.

In a committee room packed with spectators, Major Douglas leveled an eight-point indictment against the banking system. Then he outlined broadly the alternative of a basis of which was utilization of the productive wealth of the country for monetization purposes.

DESCRIBED AS THREATS
His list of eight "symptoms" of evils threatening the economic system was as follows:

1. A surplus of unpurchasable production. This could not mean production which nobody wanted but a large amount of product which nobody could afford to buy.

2. Consequent unemployment, which he preferred to call surplus productive capacity.

3. Consequent poverty, which Major Douglas claimed was not really the result of unemployment. He would call it lack of purchasing power.

4. Redundant production machinery—or a surplus of productive capacity in relation to purchasing power.

5. Consequent cut-throat competition to sell or exchange goods for purchasing power.

6. Disappearance of industrial profits.

7. Consequent business and industrial depression and failure.

8. Increasing competition for foreign export markets to offset the failure of home markets, and the consequent international friction threatening and ultimately leading to war.

He had been following the evidence given before the banking commission by banker witnesses. Major Douglas said, and had noticed a tendency to debate and deny facts established ten or twelve years.

LIBERALS SPEAK
Leading the attack on the bill were three Liberals from different parts of the country: Hon. Charles Stewart, Liberal member for Edmonton West; Harry Butcher, Liberal member for Last Mountain, Sask.; and J. L. Hiley, Liberal member for Hants-Kings, N.S.

MINISTER SPEAKS
In proposing the bill, the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Charles Stewart, said it had the object of providing the greatest financial return to producers and to give them control of their own marketing. It was designed to regulate the spread between producer and consumer prices in sound, simple and practical method.

The minister said he had received a large number of commendations from individual producers and individuals, not only producers, but consumers.

The bill contained too much machinery, he said. He thought the bill was too complicated. He thought the bill was too complicated. He thought the bill was too complicated.

BUREAUCRATIC INTERFERENCE
Representing a Maritime apple growing region, Mr. Hiley said he opposed the bill because it would establish a multiplicity of boards, making the machinery cumbersome and slow. He thought the bill was too complicated. He thought the bill was too complicated. He thought the bill was too complicated.

In addition, the board could regulate the production of any single farmer, tell him when he could market his goods and what grades he could grow. This might result in withholding goods from the market for higher prices, a system found to be disastrous for rubber and coffee producers.

Mr. Stewart and Mr. Butcher objected to the bill on the ground it was regimentation of producers, and its members and agents would be forced into marketing schemes beyond their immediate control. Farmers or growers, for instance, could be prohibited from producing anything, could be refused licenses or have their licenses cancelled.

As the minister rose, Jean Francois Pouliot, Liberal, Temiscouata, Que., said he would be submitting a committee of the whole House, but was silenced by shouts of "sit down" from the government benches.

CHANGES SEEN
Mr. Weir declared marketing had been performed differently in the past. In the old days, the consumers got products direct from the producer in most cases, and the producer thus received practically 100 per cent of the consumer's dollar.

With the growth of urban centres, however, it became necessary to move products more or less in the natural state, and as a result marketing became more complicated.

Now, he continued, there was the producer on the farm; the assembly agents who assembled the goods in large or small lots; the wholesaler or manufacturer; the retailer; and finally the consumer. These various movements entailed many costs, for transportation, storage, financing and insurance, and share were profits at the different stages. Similarly, if the goods were sent direct to manufacturers, there were four or five stages through which goods passed.

CO-OPERATIVES
Producers themselves had attempted to remedy conditions by the formation of co-operative organizations, said Mr. Weir. He himself was a member of one of these, and any criticism he directed towards them was not due to opposition.

They had not, however, been successful in many cases and the reasons for their failure were twofold.

"But," said Mr. Weir, "I am not so much discouraged with the failures which have taken place as I am, encouraged by the success of a large number of co-operative societies, the adverse conditions with which they had to contend."

There were 795 co-operative marketing organizations in Canada.

DEATH DUTIES
Death duties in the last year, said Mr. Chamberlain, included the largest payment ever to come from a single estate in the whole history of this tax. This was the $8,000,000 from the estate of Sir John Elphinstone, former shipping magnate and reputedly the richest man in England, who died July 17, 1933, at Dieppe, France.

One of the few sources from which the Chancellor said he expected decreased revenue in the coming year was sugar, allowing for nearly $1,000,000 less revenue from that product because of the great quantity imported from within the empire which had a preferential treatment.

WAR DEBTS
The Chancellor's statement on the war debts was applauded. It was "Neither last year nor the year before did I make any provision for the payment of the war debt to the United States, nor for the receipt of war debts or reparations by ourselves. In the absence of any further development, I propose to follow precisely the same line this year."

Mr. Chamberlain estimated total inland revenue income for the ensuing fiscal year would be $393,000,000—or $1,955,000,000—and the total ordinary revenue on the existing basis of taxation would be $727,300,000—or $3,536,000,000.

He estimated ordinary expenditures as $299,100,000—or $3,490,500,000—leaving a surplus on the budget of $230,100,000—or $1,455,500,000.

"This," he said, "is the largest surplus in ten years and enables me to begin the long-awaited process of relief from heavy burdens."

He announced general preferences of colonial sugar would be restored. He said new duties would be levied on patent leather, hydrocarbon and oil.

OTTAWA AGREEMENTS
He indicated a decrease in general duties was expected since in proportion to the inter-imperial trade, places foreign trade a smaller revenue would be expected in the duties on foreign products imposed following the Ottawa agreements.

AUTO TAX
After January 1, 1935, the present automobile horsepower tax of $1 per horse-power will be reduced 25 per cent, thereby cutting the gov-

RELIEF BILL VOTED BY M.P.'S

Spencer, Robert Gardiner, George Coote, E. J. Garland, William Lucas, Adolph Luchowicz, William Irvine and A. M. Carmichael supported the government. Miss Agnes MacPhail, U.F.O., voted with the Liberals. One other, Humphrey Mitchell, was paired but announced he would have opposed the bill.

WANTED SUM STATED

In another division yesterday evening, the government had a majority of forty-seven against a Liberal motion to send the bill back to committee for deletion of offending clauses. Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King proposed inclusion of a definite sum to cover relief expenditures, thus relieving parliament of the authority over taxation and deletion of the wide powers taken by the government under which regulations could be made by order-in-council for the "peace, order and good government" of the country.

B.N.A. ACT REVISION

"That is what we have been urging all along," said Mr. King, referring to B.N.A. amendments. Since the Liberal government had introduced changes so the Dominion could have control of the administration of social services, he suggested a committee be appointed to study the B.N.A. Act. Like every other member of the opposition, he was appalled at the government's arrangement with Trotsky, who had lived through his worst months without their knowing it, raised the villa last Sunday.

A nation-wide clamor of protest for expulsion of Trotsky developed immediately after the public had learned of his mysterious Barbizon hideaway.

M. Sauraut declined to say whether Trotsky would be permitted to return to Canada, whether he would be compelled to quit French territory entirely.

"WORM IN FRUIT"
The Nationalist press demanded the immediate deportation of the man from producing as installed "like a worm in the fruit" in one of the loveliest spots in the country.

It was charged Trotsky had been actively promoting his "Fourth International" through the Russian review, the Bulletin of the Opposition, which he is openly conducting in Paris.

Trotsky already has formed in France, the Nationalist press asserted, "neo-Communist leagues" and "centres of action," whose objective is a "general strike and the overthrow of the present government."

Trotsky's whole programme, the principal objective of which is permanent revolution, aims at rallying extremist groups into a united front.

GIVEN GUARDS
Threats by White Russians gained Trotsky the assurance of safe conduct from his Barbizon refuge. Police said he would be conducted out of the country "with the greatest discretion and the utmost secrecy."

His expulsion is likely within twenty-four hours, an official indicated.

plan, similar to one he had laid before the Nationalist government and which he filed in detail with the committee. His provisions were drastic. Bank dividends would be limited to 8 per cent per annum, the rate usually received by private banks but much lower than the rate for commercial institutions.

TWO ACCOUNTS
Creation of two suspense accounts from profits over and above the 8 per cent dividend was another step in the plan. Finally, the plan provided that a proportion of credit in suspense accounts should be used for reduction of customers' overdrafts, and decreasing or reimbursing interest paid on customers' overdrafts.

The plan also envisioned application of the same principle to insurance companies. In the case of insurance companies, the proportion of profits would be utilized in the purchase of preference or debenture stocks to be allotted pro rata to applicants.

CONTROLLED BY BANKS
It was a fact, said the quiet-spoken engineer-economist that 75 or 80 per cent of the assets of the world were in the control, direct or indirect, of banks and insurance companies.

In a committee room packed with spectators, Major Douglas leveled an eight-point indictment against the banking system. Then he outlined broadly the alternative of a basis of which was utilization of the productive wealth of the country for monetization purposes.

DESCRIBED AS THREATS
His list of eight "symptoms" of evils threatening the economic system was as follows:

1. A surplus of unpurchasable production. This could not mean production which nobody wanted but a large amount of product which nobody could afford to buy.

2. Consequent unemployment, which he preferred to call surplus productive capacity.

3. Consequent poverty, which Major Douglas claimed was not really the result of unemployment. He would call it lack of purchasing power.

4. Redundant production machinery—or a surplus of productive capacity in relation to purchasing power.

5. Consequent cut-throat competition to sell or exchange goods for purchasing power.

6. Disappearance of industrial profits.

7. Consequent business and industrial depression and failure.

8. Increasing competition for foreign export markets to offset the failure of home markets, and the consequent international friction threatening and ultimately leading to war.

He had been following the evidence given before the banking commission by banker witnesses. Major Douglas said, and had noticed a tendency to debate and deny facts established ten or twelve years.

MINISTER SPEAKS

In proposing the bill, the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. ## LEAK OF NEWS STIRS DEBATE

Associated Press
Washington, April 17.—The United States House of Representatives voted yesterday to publish the names of the Prazier-Lemke farm mortgage-refinancing bill petition and barely escaping adopting a resolution to investigate.

The Associated Press and the newspapers of William Randolph Hearst were lambasted by Representative Tom Blanton, Texas Democrat, author of a resolution calling for an investigation of how they obtained incomplete lists of petitioners in the Prazier-Lemke and the McClellan bank deposit pay-off bill.

Blanton charged they had violated house rules and that either a member or employee of the house had made the signers' names available for publication. Later, however, he withdrew his resolution.

Blanton said that if the Associated Press continued to publish such lists its representatives should be barred from the galleries.

REFUNDING MOVE IN B.C. IS EXPLAINED

Attorney-General Says
Courts Will Be Closed to Foreign Bondholders Who
Do Not Accept B.C.'s
Offer

Vancouver, April 17.—Doors of the courts will be closed to foreign bondholders who do not accept the refunding offer of the British Columbia government, according to authority given in the Revenue Act passed at the last session of the Legislature.

Attorney-General Gordon Sloan declared yesterday in an address before the legal and legislative bureau of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

Mr. Sloan's subject was "Legislation of the Past Session."

The address drew one of the largest meetings of the year and the Minister made a favorable impression in his concise review of some fifteen of the acts recently passed.

"Under this act, to the man with bonds we say: 'We will give you 100 cents on the dollar for your bond, but we do not say when that power will be exercised,' said the Attorney-General.

"Referring to those bondholders outside the province, Mr. Sloan declared the 'door of the courts will be closed to them by the act' if they do not accept the government's offer."

He said no one wished to violate the sanctity of contracts, but said it is impossible for the province to continue its financing as it has been doing.

SPECIAL POWERS ACT

"There is more nonsense talked about the Special Powers Act than anything else and by people who know better," Mr. Sloan continued.

"It is an act designed to deal with laws that may be passed at Ottawa. If occasion arises, where power is necessary, we can take that power to get planned economy in the province. Everything that is done under the act is subject to the will of Parliament. Ottawa has power to disallow the act. The act should be considered dangerous and it may prove helpful."

"I have heard it said in Vancouver that the province should have more than fourteen members in the Legislature, the same as it has in the Federal House. If you are willing to get such authority to fourteen men whom you do not know, surely you will give the same powers to seven men whom you do know."

MARKETING ACT

Under the new marketing act, the province could pass regulations to conform with the federal marketing act. The federal government, he added, could not give the province power or take away power already exercised under the B.V.A. Act.

MINIMUM WAGE ACT

Dealing with the laws relating to economics, Mr. Sloan first discussed the changes in the Minimum Wage Act, declaring the last minimum wage act was more a gesture than an act. "The new act has teeth in it, and rest assured it will be enforced," he declared.

He explained the industrial relations board had wide powers not only to fix wages for the various industries, but to make these applicable in varying degrees to different parts of the province, consideration being given to the geographical influence and conditions in the respective districts. The board will have power to deal with the "board racket," he said, and also with cases where employees return part of their wages to employers after the minimum wage has been paid. Employees who return wages are now liable to punishment, just as well as employers who take the return, he said. He explained further that the board had power to deal with co-operative schemes whereby wages are paid out of share earnings in order to beat the act.

MORTGAGE RATES

In the Mortgage and Mortgagees' Act, Mr. Sloan said municipalities were protected in that municipal taxes were made a first charge. The spirit of this act, he explained, was that instead of approaching their difficulties at arm's length, mortgagees and mortgagees could approach the subject with the common-sense view of doing what was best for both.

TAXATION INQUIRY

Mr. Sloan said appointment would be made this week of a commission to deal with the question of the taxation of leased cropland in Vancouver. It would be headed by a supreme court judge. Mr. Sloan declared it was hoped that for all time this commission would settle the status of this much-vexed question which has been the occasion for so much representation at Victoria in recent years by the City of Vancouver.

MUST BE CONQUERED

In closing, Mr. Sloan declared that while great difficulties confronted the government they had to be conquered. If not, the increasing taxation and debt would swamp the province, he said.

Approximately 360,000,000 tons of rock and earth were removed in constructing the Panama Canal.

COPPER PRICES CONSIDERED

At Tariff Board Hearing
Chairman Contrasts Canada and Britain

Ottawa, April 17.—Recalling statements made before the Tariff Board some weeks ago that Canadian copper costs more in Canada than it did in the United Kingdom, Hon. George Sedgewick, chairman, yesterday called on J. J. Warren, president of Consolidated Smelters, and J. Y. Murdoch, president of Noranda Mines, to shed more light on this situation.

That such a situation did exist was generally recognized by the witnesses appearing before the board, but there were no definite arguments advanced as to why it should be.

"It doesn't exactly seem fair," said Chairman Sedgewick. "I may be wrong, but that is what the man on the street is saying."

Mr. Warren outlined the early history of the mine and lead production of Consolidated Smelters, saying it had its inception in the years of the Great War, but had operated without profit during these same years.

At the present time their annual production of lead and zinc was about 200,000 tons. Zinc production was about 60,000 tons, of which the Canadian market would absorb only about 12,000 tons a year.

SELL SURPLUS

The result was that this surplus had to be sold outside of Canada at whatever price could be obtained for it, or else they would be unable to operate at all.

"We are selling zinc all over the world, but we have no control of the prices outside of Canada," he said.

"Also we have as much copper as anybody, but it is in the ground and that is the best place for it at present prices."

"But," interjected Mr. Sedgewick, "why should duty be paid by the Canadian, while the British gets it duty free?"

"With copper as it is to-day, nobody is making any money out of it," said Mr. Warren.

Mr. Murdoch stated Canada had the third States copper market at its door up to four years ago, but that market was shut off by a four cent duty imposed by the United States.

"I believe the United States copper market permanently is lost to Canada," he said.

THE VERDICT OF SOUTH OXFORD

THE MOST SIGNIFICANT FEDERAL by-election in Canada for many years occurred in the South Oxford division of Ontario yesterday and resulted in the return of Mr. A. S. Rennie, the Liberal standard-bearer, by a majority of 1,530, the largest ever recorded since the riding was established in the year of Confederation. Only twice has the majority been one of four figures: in 1887, when Sir Richard Cartwright won it for the Liberals with a margin over his opponent of 1,122, and in 1917, when Mr. Sutherland, the candidate who was rejected yesterday, won with 1,312 votes to spare. This, it will be remembered, was the war-time election, in which there was a union of both parties. Mr. Sutherland held the seat from 1911 until 1925 and his supporters thought he had a good chance yesterday to put it once more in the Conservative column. With the exception of those fourteen years, however, South Oxford has been Liberal, although the late member held it in the general election of 1930 by the narrow margin of fifty-five votes.

The importance Prime Minister Bennett placed on the outcome of yesterday's contest was apparent from the fact that in spite of parliamentary and governmental pressure at Ottawa he and three of his ministers delivered several speeches in the constituency. Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Ernest LaPointe took a hand in the campaign and put the case for the opposition squarely up to the electors. Mr. King warned them that the ministry at Ottawa had reduced a representative government to a nullity. He pointed out that under the "blank cheque" policy the government could do anything it wanted with the taxpayers' money and credit without consulting their representatives in Parliament. He put it this way in a speech the other day:

I wonder if you realize to what extent your parliamentary institutions have been shot to pieces in this country. To-day we are in the middle of a world social revolution and the problem before us is where is this thing going to end?

In a statement given out after the result of the election was known, Mr. Mackenzie King recalled that Premier Bennett, referring to the vacancy occasioned by the death of the late member, had said in the House of Commons that in his judgment the electors of South Oxford were the "finest representatives of the finest type of Canadian citizenship." He was stating nothing more than the truth. Those same electors now have shown by their votes that, much as they may admire the conscientiousness, integrity and energy of the Prime Minister, they are of the opinion that in arrogating to himself functions which belong to Parliament he has become a national liability.

Mr. Bennett's task in these critical times would have been a great deal less onerous if he had admitted at the outset that he was no super-man, that he would require all the assistance and co-operation Parliament and the country as a whole could give him.

Three years ago, when the country's unemployment problem had only a shadow of the gravity it now has, Mr. Mackenzie King begged him to appoint a competent impartial national commission to survey the whole unemployment problem, give the government the benefit of its advice, and then control expenditures. This proposal was not acceptable to the Prime Minister. Mr. King tendered it on subsequent occasions but without success. Instead, Mr. Bennett introduced his blank cheque legislation which, in the matter of unemployment relief, gave the government power to do as it liked without consulting Parliament, and among the chief beneficiaries have been powerful private interests, who have received more than $100,000,000 in subsidies and guarantees.

It is interesting to note, incidentally, that South Oxford did yesterday something very similar to that which South Huron did in the by-election in October, 1932. The Liberal won the latter seat in the general election of 1930 by a majority of 349; but a little more than two years afterwards the Liberal majority grew to 1,989. Still more sensational was the complete turnover of the traditional Conservative seat of Hamilton East in August, 1931, one year after the general election, when a Laborite turned a Conservative majority of 4,751 in a three-cornered contest into an opposition majority of 3,656, also in a three-cornered contest. When these Ontario verdicts are added to the decisive verdict against the administration last year in New Brunswick, Quebec and Saskatchewan, there would appear to be abundant evidence that the Ottawa government's days are numbered.

SUGGESTS BETTER HOUSING FOR U.S.

IN A BOOK HE HAS JUST WRITTEN, DR.

O. W. M. Sprague, formerly adviser to the Bank of England and until a month or so ago economic adviser to the United States Treasury, shows that the housing problem in the neighboring republic, if solved, will help bring the national recovery for which President Roosevelt is striving.

"That a potential demand exists for better housing, I think no one will question," Dr. Sprague writes. "While there is perhaps an over-supply for people enjoying incomes of five thousand dollars and more, present housing conditions of the majority of people with incomes below two thousand dollars certainly leave much to be desired."

Dr. Sprague suggests as an objective, or slogan—"one more room for every family in the United States below the income level of two thousand dollars." He thinks this is by no means an impracticable objective if building costs can be reduced, while he points out that lower costs would induce a large demand for labor and materials employed in making improvements in homes of those enjoying larger incomes. He sums up this way:

If we really want better housing, we must feel, and feel strongly, that any individual group or class that seeks to obtain an early and inordinate gain is taking a course that is contrary to the public interest, as well as a course which, by and large, is shortsighted from a selfish, individualist view.

Given, the necessary support of public opinion, I believe that an accelerated programme of home-building, with better equipment and furnishings, is entirely feasible.

What Dr. Sprague suggests and what the United States government will do may be two entirely different things; but it does not require much imagination to realize the merit in any plan which would make for the better health and contentment of the people. The best investment any nation can make is one which protects its most valuable of all assets—the human asset.

AN EPIC

MEN WHO FLY THE AIRWAYS WILL take off their hats to the seven Russian aviators who rescued more than a hundred souls from the perilous ice of the Arctic sea. It is truly said that they wrote a brilliant chapter in the history of human struggle against the far-northern elements.

Small wonder that the Soviet government should have decided to do them high honor and likewise pay fitting tribute to those who were marooned on the ice-pack, and who knew not from one minute to another when they would be swept to eternity by the relentless forces of Nature.

FIGURES WORTH STUDYING

AS THERE ARE THROUGHOUT THE world a generation that was unborn when war broke out in 1914, and another generation then too young to understand what it was all about, it is just as well that as wide a publicity as possible should be given not only to the details of the cost of the great conflict in human lives and treasure, but also to the sinister influences that are at work at the present time which may produce further international chaos and slaughter. The following from The World's Almanac (New York) will be of interest:

In dead soldiers (of all nations).....	9,998,771
Seriously wounded .....	6,265,812
Otherwise wounded .....	14,002,039
Prisoners and missing .....	5,983,600
Civilians, refugees, victims of pogroms and massacres not counted.....
Total direct cost net .....	$38,840,254,847
Capitalized value of human life.....	1,399,176,955
Soldiers .....	9,259,259,259
Civilians .....	6,903,554,790
Property losses—
On land .....	$6,164,009,093
Shipping and cargo .....	1,399,176,955
Loss of production .....	9,259,259,259
War relief .....	308,761,317
Loss to neutrals .....	340,082,908
Total indirect costs .....	$31,195,998,469
Grand total .....	$69,536,253,316

Add to the foregoing the fact that the world at the present time is spending approximately $5,000,000,000 on armaments every year—considerably more than in 1914—and you get a picture of what is going on and what the implications are.

A TAXED BIBLE

ONE OF THE LEADING DAILY NEWS- papers of Ireland, The Irish Times, has discussed the prospect for the Free State to tax Bibles. It points out that the Bible is a fundamental necessity of the Protestant faith, and the numbers which are in daily use in the Free State's Protestant churches, schools and households must run into hundreds of thousands.

"To-day," The Irish Times says, "most of these Bibles are printed in England—where the British and Foreign Bible Society alone produces annually some twelve million copies of the Scriptures." It goes on to say that these Bibles "are well printed, well bound, and are sold at prices which, save under a tariff on imported Bibles, therefore, would be a tax on the religion of all Free State Protestants."

As we have pointed out in these columns many times, when nations really jump into the tariff sea it is difficult to foresee where the economic tides will carry them. At least The Irish Times has given President de Valera something new and novel to think about.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

PREMIER MUSSOLINI
 Le Canada, Montreal

Mussolini has just made another of those great noisy speeches thanks to which he maintains among his black shirts the legend of Il Duce's eternal youth, and among the chauvinists of all countries the conviction that the Italian statesman stands head and shoulders above all other statesmen of his day. But to be a great statesman one needs to have a high sense of responsibility toward one's own people; and toward the collectivity of nations. International solidarity to-day is a vital necessity of individual survival.

THE VICIOUS CIRCLE
 The Windsor Border Cities Star

There are all kinds of men in public life, who find it to their individual political advantage to advocate the writing down of debts and the reducing of interest. Anyone voicing such a thought can be sure of public acclaim from the debtors. Quite naturally they are willing to have anyone do anything that will reduce the debt burden, even if it means throwing the load on to the creditors. Mr. Garland is an ardent supporter of knocking off so much from every debt. The chief trouble about such reputation is that the borrower will find it hard to borrow again. Every creditor is liable to be stung once, but he will not be so ready to lend a second time. That applies to nations as well as individuals. Once he finds a debtor has the idea that it is all right to borrow money and not to repay the loan, the creditor is going to be wary of advancing any further money. Besides, the question arises: What is to follow the writing down of the debts? There are many who consider that as the preliminary step towards free credit and the advancing of more funds to the delinquent debtor. It is the beginning of a circle by which the debtor has his debt reduced, then borrows more funds in an effort to borrow himself out of his remaining debt. In truth he only plunges deeper into debt and in a few years he will be calling on Mr. Garland, or someone with ideas similar to Mr. Garland, to have the new debt written down like the old.

A THOUGHT

God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted, above that ye are able.—1 Corinthians x 13.
 How many perils do enfold the righteous man to make him daily fall.—Spenser.

Loose Ends

The sad fate of a promising young statesman who learned too much about statecraft—the dull rigidity of our attitude and our ballrooms—the good old superstition of security—and the instinct of the soil.

By H. B. W.

ECONOMIST

A YOUNG FRIEND of mine started out a while ago to become a statesman. He had positive convictions and fixed principles of economics and government which he wanted to put into effect. So he went to a school of economics in London last year and devoted himself energetically to the study of these higher aspects of political science.

The other day he got back from England, ready to apply his learning, his principles and his convictions. But, alas, after a year's intensive study of all the world's economists, he found that he had no principles, no theory, every principle, every conviction had withered away. None could stand up to such investigation. Each of them, from the most conservative to the most radical, was seen to have a flaw in its somewhere.

The poor fellow has decided, therefore, that he cannot go into statecraft since he could never believe in any of his policies. He is going to become a professor of economics and get paid for elucidating theories which he knows in his heart are unsound. He is going to explain solutions when he knows, deep down, that there is no solution to anything.

This should be a warning to you young men with political ambitions, and it should show you electors what kind of men you want in politics. You want men who know something, but not too much; not so much that they have become philosophers instead of politicians, for philosophers, like me, have long since discovered that every plan fails ultimately, every reform degenerates eventually into reaction, every institution perishes. Such men can't act because they have no real faith in action.

For a politician you want a man who has no such haunting fears, who can see too far ahead. You want a man bold with the valor of a small learning and a large ego. You want a man who is not paralyzed by any realization of his own mortality, or any suspicion that whatever he does things will be much the same fifty years hence. You want men, above all, who never question their own essential greatness, who have no secret doubts about their right to rule.

Then you will get action. I may be wrong frequently, but it is better than sitting still and meditating on the vanity of all action. Well, thank heaven, in our civilization and in our country we are not cursed with politicians who know too much or who are crippled by their own modesty. We are splendidly endowed with leaders who have no doubts about their own immortality and the utter rectitude of their policies. As events in the last few years have shown, they never made the mistake of looking ahead twelve months or so. True men of action, they acted first and thought afterwards. And look at the results.

DULL CREATURES

THE OTHER NIGHT, in a weak moment, I was watching the young of the village whooping it up in a mild way at a local hostelry. It seemed all right until a couple of young bloods started to dance to new one, the Carica. (If that's the way you spell it), the one from South America which is all twists and curves and wriggles, a divine poetry of motion as executed by a trained chorus in the movies. But when you see the splendid undulations of the Carica you realize suddenly what a dull and sluggish race we are in these cold polar regions. You realize just how cabined, cribbed, confined are the wildest whoopings-up of the young in our ballrooms.

SIDE GLANCES

"Now, I'm going to show you gentlemen just how I want this done."

Midland Alberta Sootless Coal

Kirk Coal Co. Ltd.

Why, after the lush contentions from South America a group of ordinary Canadians and Americans at a dance just seem to be walking around the room in one another's arms, a kind of funeral rite performed by advanced cases of rheumatism and arthritis. Besides the stiff dances of the Eskimos or the crude gyrations of our native Indians are civilized and poetic. All the poetry, all the music and rhythm seems to have seeped out of our race and we can only walk around a room with sad faces to the sound of music.

At the party which I attended one young buck seemed to have achieved something better, some feeling for music, some instinct for the ancient art of the dance. He was hitting it up almost as well as a South American movie performer, with true abandon and the enthusiasm of an artist. But as his apologetic friends were particular to explain to me, the lad was a bit tight and would behave quite all right if he were sober. Poor chap, when he is sober no doubt he is as dull and miserable-looking as the rest of us. I suppose we are all the victims of our latitude.

GOLD

A FELLOW HAS written to reprove me for being too frivolous about the gold standard. He says that it is fellows like me, making fun of the gold standard, who lead countries into inflation and make a lot of trouble for everybody. So long as our money is based on gold, says he, the country will be safe, but if fellows like me ever get it off, then everything will go to pot.

It is curious how the quaint legend of the gold standard thus persists when the reality has long since disappeared. Yes, our money is on the gold standard. Our total currency is backed by a proportion of gold. But what the public never gets through its skull is the fact that in our banks to-day are deposits about ten times as great as the total currency of the country and about twenty-five times as great as our gold reserves. These deposits are just bookkeeping entries, but positive wealth, created out of nothing more than a pen and ink in the hands of a bank clerk.

This wealth can be transferred from one person to another by cheque, as it is every day and at no point is it based on gold or on paper. It can be increased or contracted, as the banks desire. It is a moving, living body of credit controllable and controlled. It is simply the bookkeeping entry or contract covering the performance of certain work—the guarantee that Farmer Smith will produce so many potatoes this year, that I will write so many newspaper columns; that you will buy a pair of shoes. It is the real money of our civilization. And apart from the settlement of international debts gold reserves are only needed to maintain an old superstition of solidarity and security in the public mind.

Some day the world will awake to the fallacy of the whole business and realize that the only wealth is a serviceable commodity or a useful service and that all you need is accurate bookkeeping to cover the exchanges of them from one person to another. Then you won't need any gold at all, except for filling teeth. Then all the worthless gold stocks that I own will be still more worthless. But what won't happen for some time yet. We can still afford to go on mining our B.C. gold, for superstitions die hard.

REAL WEALTH

WHILE YOU and your civilization are thus fattening on an artificial prosperity, the production of an article which has little actual use to mankind see how we, out in the country, are contributing real value to society and thus, under the curious paradox of our system, deterring the return of prosperity. See how we labor in the heavy spring earth, sowing our seeds, producing a crop which will contribute to the food surplus, the low price of produce and the collapse of agriculture.

Thanks to the Legislature, we are late getting our garden in this year. We must work desperately and far into the dusk. We must endure the cruel jeers of all our neighbors, who have peas in bloom while our seed is barely in the ground yet. We have to take our chance on sunshine and rain and muskrats and all the other ills that agriculture is heir to. We have to risk our all on the whims of nature while you are secure in the city yonder on the gold standard.

You should see how even the young in these parts are seized at this season with the immemorial instinct of the soil. You should see the little girl and little boy from next door planting their garden, assuring their own food supply at this tender age. True, they plant only some of last year's seeds, which I have given them to keep them from tramping down my new carrots. True, they plant the seeds in circles and spirals and mix peas, lettuce, radish, and corn all together in one trench. True, they bury them so deep and jump upon them with such resounding grunts that many of them will never come up.

Yes, but it is the instinct that counts, the feeling of reality, based on the soil, so different from your absurd superstition of security, based on gold. You can't eat your gold and probably you can't even raise a meal off your gold stocks, but if there should be a depression or something in this country, we shall eat out here this summer, if the weather and the muskrats don't turn against us, and you may not. Looking over the mixed and circular plantings of my young friends, I am confident that we shall reap a crop such as men have never reaped before.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

ON READING EMILY DICKEINSON If one could be as brave as she through lagging day on day, No other heart need doubt to be To put the past away. For she has made her pathway plain And pointed hour by hour How poems can be penned from pain. How grief can grow a flower. If loss can so enrich the soul And swing bright portals wide, Then with lament's unrelenting Nile None need be satisfied. Since promise can sustain so long A life in barren ways, None dare deny his noise of song. His syllable of praise.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

April 17, 1909

(From The Times Files)

Capt. Thomas Davis was appointed last evening by the City Council to take over the position of chief of the Victoria Fire Department. Capt. Davis comes to Victoria from Toronto, and will take charge of the local force as soon as he arrives.

Another shipment of marble from its quarries on the West Coast has just been received by the Nootka Sound Marble Company. The samples on exhibit in the company's office, on Yates Street, are of even richer color than the earlier products of the quarry.

The long procession has commenced and the first of the 500 horses for the summer meet have arrived and were located on the east side of the Willows race track. The first brigade musters nine. They arrived yesterday afternoon before sundown on the steamer Watcom from Strait of Georgia, where they were en route from the northland, where today horse racing is a thing of the past.

A proposed convalescent home is to be built by the King's Daughters at Duncan and thence is planned as a plain, home-like building of two stories, sixty feet long by fifty feet wide. It is to be situated north of Duncan on the bank of the Cowichan River.

Workmen have already commenced operations preparatory to the erection of the new block for the B.C. Land and Investment Agency on the corner of Broughton and Langley Streets. The first step was the destruction of the old and historic building long known as the Seamen's Institute. This is one of the landmarks of Victoria.

Other People's Views

A VANCOUVER ORCHESTRA

To The Editor:—A letter appearing in the issue of The Daily Colonist on Sunday, April 15, under the above caption from S. G. Peele, has resulted in many inquiries being made to this office regarding the complaint made, that a returned soldier organization is importing an orchestra for a ball on May 26. May I take this opportunity to assure all those interested that none of the branches or auxiliaries of the Legion in this area is the organization concerned; that the Legion is fully alive to the seriousness of unemployment among musicians and other sections of the population, and that it always sets its face against the importation of any kind of labor when a sufficient supply of local material is available, and finally I would add that the Legion's objection to an imported orchestra for dance purposes is as strenuous to-day as it was on the eve of Remembrance Day last year when apparently many Victorians did not see fit to support the objection.

C. A. GILL,
 Secretary, Victoria and District Council, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L.

"TAKE-ALL"

To The Editor:—Your "Extracts from Hansard" of the 13th instant states that Mr. Luchkovitch, the C.C.F. member for Vegreville, recently gave in the House Sir Erskine May's explanation of the origin of the word "Tory." Apparently Sir Erskine's explanation is incomplete. I was taught at school that the word is an Anglicized version of an Irish expression which was used by the native Irish to designate certain bog-trotting footpads, common in Ireland at that time, whose practice it was not only to deprive their victims of their valuables but to strip them of their clothes as well. ## PEACE CRUSADE PLAN OUTLINED

C. deC. Johnson, Duncan, Urges Course Against Armament

Declaring the Great War to have been a war for profit for a few individuals, and voicing a strong plea for state control of armaments, besides suggesting a direct course of action might be taken against politicians who were averse to the activities of his World Peace Crusade, C. deC. Johnson, Duncan, originator of the crusade, addressed a meeting in the Memorial Hall yesterday evening.

As a means by which the public in general could support the crusade, Mr. Johnson pointed out the fact voters could take the course of casting their ballots only for those political candidates who had pledged themselves to the aims of the movement. The crusade, he noted, was non-political, but could express itself in a direct manner as he suggested.

During the nine months since his organization of the peace crusade, membership in it had grown to 127,000 throughout Canada. Since its inception, many societies had also pledged themselves to its aims, making the adherents of the plan number upwards of 500,000, he said.

NEED PEACE FOR RECOVERY
"There cannot ever be complete recovery of the economic system without the certainty of peace. That fear of war must be removed from our midst, and we must make it possible for our people to have the right to say whether they will enter into a war of aggression," Mr. Johnson declared. He recounted the results of the Great War, and asked if it was not a case of disillusionment and despair that took the place of sacrifice and patriotism. "It was a war for profit for a few individuals, and when you look at it in that way, can you wonder why the Peace Crusade wants the state to have full control of armaments?" he asked.

Before actual disarmament could be accomplished, the speaker noted, moral disarmament was required. Clumsy tools, he said, had been found to be particularly dangerous weapons on occasions.

In some detail the speaker referred to the trouble over the Polish Corridor, suggesting that if the treaty which had set that up had been based on error, it was by no means cowardly or unjust to amend it.

LEADERS LOST
Mr. Johnson spoke of the loss of valuable men with great leadership capabilities in the Great War, adding that had resulted in leaving Canada to a considerable extent dependent upon older men for public leadership. Horrors of the next war, with its aerial and gas attacks and its destruction of non-combatants were outlined by the speaker before he voiced a plea to the youth of to-day, the element which would suffer most from another great conflict, to work in the cause of peace.

Mr. Johnson was introduced by Very Rev. Cecil S. Quainton, Dean of Columbia. Following his main address, T. Guy Sheppard described some of the actual horrors of war and Stephen Lloyd, at the request of Dean Quainton, criticized the address. Mr. Johnson replied to the criticism.

agreeable surprise.
The meeting artists will be Mrs. J. Travis, contralto; Mrs. Paul Green, organist and accompanist; Frank Partridge, tenor; and Alec W. Semple, elocutionist. A silver collection will be taken in aid of the hymn book fund.

Comparison To Hitler Is Made

C.C.F. Speaker Says B.C. Premier Puts Legislation in Cold Storage

Declaring Premier Pattullo as laboring under the same belief as Hitler in Germany that there are only two classes, the good and the bad, A. B. Sanders, M.A., yesterday evening addressed a C.C.F. meeting in the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Sanders denounced the Special Powers Act as being unconstitutional. All followers of the Liberal and old-line Conservative parties were of Fascist minds, he said. As soon as Premier Pattullo was appointed to power, he began to play with the constitution and put legislation in cold storage. He suggested the Premier did not know much about constitutional law.

The speaker charged the Liberal Party stole a plank from the C.C.F. platform and then rode to power on the "work and wages" slogan. He attacked the government proposals for aiding industry.

Listerine treatment often gets brilliant results within 7 days

Removes scales and crust—cleanses and invigorates the scalp

If your head feels hot and itchy, if your hair is beginning to fall, if you show the slightest evidence of loose dandruff, get to work with Listerine at once. You will be delighted to find how quickly it attacks this irritating and humiliating condition. Thousands have used it successfully.

Most men experiment around with complicated and expensive so-called cures before finding, in the end, that Listerine would have done the job for them at little cost and in a short time.

The treatment is ridiculously simple. Just douse Listerine on the head and massage thoroughly with the finger tips either before or after the soap and water shampoo. Often one treatment will get results. Even stubborn cases frequently yield in seven days. If the scalp is dry, use a little olive or castor oil in conjunction with the Listerine. ## B.C. Drama Festival Opens For Week Here

Hon. K. C. Macdonald Officiates at Inaugural Ceremonies in Little Theatre Competition

Winning Plays From Each Night to Be Selected For Grand Championship Finals Saturday

By M. A.

Victoria's week of B.C. Drama Festival, which will come to a grand climax Saturday evening, was opened yesterday evening at the Little Theatre of the Crystal Garden when the first three plays on the long programme were presented before a large and fashionable crowd.

Hon. K. C. Macdonald, Minister of Agriculture, deputizing for Premier Ullio, formally opened the festival with an address in which he expressed for the government appreciation of the B.C. Drama Festival Association for the service it has been rendering the people of British Columbia in encouraging the development of the dramatic art.

Major L. Bullock-Webster, president of the organization, in introducing Macdonald, told how that cabinet minister had come from a part of the province that had pioneered in the theatre movement in the west having taken it up thirty-three years ago at Kerekes. Later, the one of its activities was transferred to Naramata where it attained the dignity of having a home in a loft on an apple shed. There were now drama organizations in that part of the country.

The adjudicating for the opening night was done by Mrs. Cecil Edward Drumheller, Alberta, daughter of J. Reese-Burns of Victoria, and a well qualified as a stage director. She filled in for Mrs. Bur-

W. James, director of the Seattle Little Theatre, who is the official adjudicator for the week. Through an incident yesterday morning, Mrs. James' arrival here was delayed until yesterday, but she will officiate for the rest of the week.

ST NIGHT PRESENTATIONS
The productions staged during the week and their complete casts are:
DRON'S BAY PLAYERS' CLUB
"Crystal Clear" (fantasy), by William M. Sledge, director, Newell M. Sledge, Mrs. Deming, Patricia Penick, Mrs. Deming, Irene McAdams, Boy, George McAdams, The Girl, Jerry Longstreet, Frankson, The Man, George McAdams, Woman, Olive Barker.

CURTAIN CLUB
"Wormwood" (tragedy), by James Ferguson, director, James Ferguson, who himself played a role, Mother Korak, Gladys Sheppard, Ivan Korak, George Durham, is Korak, Bert Bailey. The singer, James Ferguson, and the pianist, James Ferguson.

THEATRE CLUB
"The Maker of Dreams" (fantasy), Oliphant Down, director, Christopher Frere, Pierrot, Harold Gelling, Erna Helene Falk, The manufacturer, Christopher Frere.

RESULTS ANNOUNCED
At the conclusion, Adjudicator Mrs. Edwards announced from the stage the ranking and the score obtained by the productions as follows: 1. "Wormwood," 85 points; 2. "Crystal Clear," 73 points; 3. "The Maker of Dreams," 60 points.

The winning play is a gripping tragedy by a Victorian, James Ferguson, who himself played a double role in the cast. Gladys Sheppard sustained the reputation she has made for herself through her work for the last two years in the "Shadow of the Nile." Miss Hadow also gained distinction through association with her in that vehicle in the last drama competition here. Mr. Durham and Mr. Bailey are also both known as talented players on the local amateur stage. They combined to give Mr. Ferguson's play a very strong cast.

The Hudson's Bay Players' Club's "Crystal Clear" presented two stories simultaneously on a double stage, the one telling a contemporary romance, while the other showed the author in her work of creation. Pretty Patricia Penick was the star of this with Frank Gibson.

The Theatre Club's "The Maker of Dreams" was a pierrot and pierrette allegory. It was distinguished by the acting of Mr. Frere, who was delightfully supported by Miss Falk and Mr. Gelling, but spoiled by the effort of Pierrot to sing verses to music from an orchestra situated at the back of the hall, with neither being able to hear the other distinctly enough to keep in time.

WINNERS FOR FINALS
Winning plays of each night during the week will go up for competition in the Saturday night grand finals. The winner will be presented with the Victoria Daily Times Challenge Cup, emblematic of the provincial championship. The presentation on that occasion will be made by Mayor David Leeming.

Other prizes to be presented include: Provincial Championship Challenge Cup, presented by Premier Pattullo; the G. Storey-Walker Authorship Cup, to be presented for the best play by a British Columbia author; the J. P. Morgan Cup, presented by the House of Commons, and the cup from the Eldridge Entertainment House—of Franklin, Ohio, and Denver, to the winners of the provincial championship.

The Victoria Little Theatre orchestra enhanced the pleasure of the evening with a programme of musical numbers.

THIS EVENING'S PROGRAMME
This evening at the Crystal Garden's Little Theatre, starting at eight o'clock, the following entries will be presented:
Victoria Little Theatre Association, "Spirit of Father Pat," by L. Bullock-Webster, directed by H. S. Burn, with Art Kerr, Herbert Fott, Les Lamb.

BRYAN MANTLE FALLS ON PRIEST

Father Coughlin Champions Unorthodox Finance at Washington

Washington, April 17.—The mantle of William Jennings Bryan has descended on Father Charles E. Coughlin. The Detroit priest's recent appearance before the House coinage committee drew an enthusiastic turnout of grey-headed worshippers of the first great silver champion of unorthodox finance.

The scrabblers of the House office building, came running, too, and hundreds of other folks from all walks of life who made an even larger crowd than flocked to see J. P. Morgan at his appearance before a Senate committee last summer.

The youthful, chubby, self-confident priest presented a strong contrast with white-haired monetary authorities who preceded him—Prof. O. M. W. Sprague and Frank Vanderlip.

He wears gold spectacles and has a high forehead, behind which an unruly middle-lock of hair sticks straight out in the back. His black garb was relieved by a white handkerchief peeking from a breast pocket.

He gestures easily and profusely, with his face in a constant, confident half-smile. His manner and voice modulations reminded one alternately of clergyman, lawyer and school teacher.

Coughlin did not hesitate to warn them of individual political consequences if they failed to follow Roosevelt. After making a long uninterrupted statement, he seemed less at ease when questions began, but settled back and enjoyed himself as soon as he realized that the committee knew much less about the subject than he did.

Often he agreed immediately with a questioner, only to qualify his answer by successive steps until he had stated the reverse.

Failure in Marriage May Be Result of Losing Sight of Ideal in Choosing Mate—Jealous Wife Chases Away Husband's Best Customers

DEAR MISS DIX—There is much literature on how to attract and hold a husband and therein lies much difficulty. If we attract and marry a man or woman with means which are unusual, that marriage is doomed because we cannot be unnatural all the time. If we are sloppy or spendthrifts, ill-tempered or drunkards, we should attract someone on our own plane. Too many marry just to be married, without holding to their ideal. If we go down town to buy a dress or an auto and let the clerk talk us into buying something different from that which we had in mind, the chances are we will be misled. The same holds true with husbands and wives. Many marriages are failures because men and women lose sight of their ideals in not getting out their mates. DR. GERTRUDE.

Answer—That is true. In our sober moments, before we have taken a draught of the intoxicating elixir of love, all of us have worked out a pattern of the man or woman we would like to have some day for a husband or wife. We know what would suit us in a mate. We know perfectly well what qualities he or she would have to have to be congenial, what characteristics he or she would have to have to hold our respect and affection.

A girl thinks that when she chooses a husband he will be a man of character and dignity, the sort of man who is respected by other men. She wants a husband who will be moral and upright and on whom she can depend, and one who will make her a good living and of whom she can be proud. A boy thinks that he would like a wife who would be a good housekeeper, one who would be thrifty and a good manager, who would feed him well and save his money. He would like her to be good-looking, of course, and always to present a good appearance, but Heaven defend him from marrying a girl who can't be happy unless she has on the latest thing from Paris and who wants to step out every night!

Oh, they know what they want and what they need in their mates! And then the girl runs across some handsome, good-for-nothing with a way with him and he sweeps her off her feet and she marries him. Or the boy meets some pretty doll who rolls her eyes at him and he falls for her and marries her. Then, when they have got their bargains home and have had time to look them over carefully, they find that they don't suit at all. It is marrying the ones who fire our fancy for the moment instead of the ones who come up to our ideals that is responsible for most of the failures in marriage.

What you say about the difficulty of keeping up a pretense in marriage is also true. No man or woman, for instance, can keep up the role of lover year after year, if he or she does not really care for the one to whom he or she is married. You can't infuse warmth into duty kisses nor put real feeling into forced caresses.

You remember that Barrie makes Sentimental Tommy, who married the woman who loved him but whom he did not care for, try to put in practice a schedule of "synthetic devotion." He would say to himself: "Now a man who loved his wife would do this to that," and he would do it. His technique was perfect, but it was unconvincing and poor Grizel was never fooled by it for a moment.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a merchant in a small town in which I know practically everyone and my business depends upon the way I treat my customers. Lots of them are women who recognize me on the street or at church, and when they are raising funds for some purpose they call on me for subscriptions, which I give. This brings tears to me. I am not a philanthropist. I am not in the slightest degree interested in any woman except my wife, but when she sees the same woman in my store a few times or when a woman she does not know bows to me, she is furiously jealous and wants to know how it is they all know me. She also resents the contributions to my women customers' charities and says that I can help everyone else but never have time to help her with anything around the house. What shall I do?

Answer—I suppose you have told her a million times that her prosperity depends upon your popularity with women, and that every woman in your store means just that much more money for her to spend. If you have tried to make her see that a merchant's success depends upon his being persona grata with women, who do the buying, and she still persists in remaining so green-eyed that she cannot see it, there is nothing else that you can do except just make up your mind to let her take her spleen out in nagging you or else to leave her.

It is incredible that any woman could have little enough sense, as well as heart, to permit her jealousy not only to ruin her husband but herself. For she also goes down in the ruins when she wrecks him by her folly. But an amazing number of women do it. Every day I get letters from merchants like you, telling of jealous wives who force them to dismiss valuable employees or who drive away customers by making scenes in their stores. Thousands of doctors and dentists write me that they have been ruined by their wives, who killed their practice by spying at keyholes and pounding into consultation rooms and otherwise giving evidence that they suspected that there was some affair between their women patients and themselves.

Nothing can be more tragic than the case of a fine man, perfectly innocent of any wrongdoing, ambitious and capable of success in his occupation, yet being ruined by his wife's idiotic jealousy and unable to help himself. For nothing that he can do avails. In vain he tells her that she is bringing poverty and ruin down upon herself and her children. In vain he tells her that the women she is so jealous of are upright and honorable and have no interest in him whatever except professionally. In vain he points to his own faithful record. She is insane with jealousy and she is willing to wreck the world in her fury, and there is nothing the poor husband can do about it. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am eighteen and in love with a man who wants to get married. But I feel that if I marry now my chances for travel are gone for good. I think I am too young to marry, anyway, but he will not wait. Many people tell me that one should marry one's first love. I am afraid that if I wait I will lose him. ALMOST NINETEEN.

Answer—you are right in thinking that if you marry your chances for travel are postponed, in all likelihood until you have reared your family and are free again. I think you are too young to marry, particularly as you seem to prefer a trip to Europe to a trip to the altar.

I am not strong for marrying first loves. I think it is better to look 'em over before you make your choice. DOROTHY DIX.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Dunk a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of Condensed JAD Salts in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and Condensed JAD Salts on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast this drink is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, biliousness, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, bloated faces and sickly complexions are urged to get a package of Condensed JAD Salts from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make any one a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Note: If you are dieting to take off fat it is important that you keep your body free from weight-inducing waste matter and poisonous toxins. For this reason Condensed JAD Salts is a valuable aid to reducing.

SAFETY DRIVE IS UNDER WAY

Police Conducting Demonstrations to Improve Traffic This Week

City police to-day continued their week's campaign to educate Victorians in correct driving methods and in matters relating to the maintenance of public safety in traffic. The drive will continue all this week under the personal supervision of Chief Heatley, assisted by Inspector John T. Boulton.

Sergeant Benjamin Acreman and Constable Alex Nichol were engaged in hand signaling demonstrations at the corner of Hillside and Douglas Streets, and in brake testing. Passing motorists were also instructed in the correct manner for entering and leaving service stations.

Each afternoon at the corner of Yates and Blanshard Streets, and Yates and Douglas Streets, similar demonstrations are given with the chief and inspector in charge, assisted by several constables.

PLACARDS USED

To obliterate the necessity for announcing the various methods, the chief has had a number of placards printed with traffic regulations on them. These are displayed at the time of the demonstrations.

Schoolchildren were also receiving their share of the education during the drive. Yesterday morning Sergeant A. H. Bishop visited Spring Ridge and Quadra Primary schools where he gave twenty-minute addresses on public safety. In the afternoon he spoke at Bank Street School. To-day he addressed pupils at Beacon Hill, Kingston Street and Burnside Schools.

Wednesday, 9.15 a.m., Victoria West; 11.30 a.m., North Ward; 2.15 p.m., Quadra, Thursday, 9.15 a.m., George Jay; 11.30 a.m., Oaklands; 2.15 p.m., South Park. Friday, 9.15 a.m., Boyd Central; 11.30 a.m., Central; 1.15 p.m., Sir James Douglas; 2.15 p.m., Margaret Jenkins.

AKES PUBLIC AD

The chief to-day reiterated his request for public co-operation in carrying out the campaign. Of late there have been numerous minor traffic accidents, which could have been materially reduced in number with proper knowledge of traffic regulations, he said. It is the intention of the department to carry out the drive with every speed and courtesy, and public assistance in this regard will bend towards the success of the campaign.

The demonstrations will be given daily at 11 o'clock at the Hillside intersection and 2 o'clock at the city corners.

CYCLES WILL ALSO BE CHECKED UP

by the department during the campaign. Constable David Donaldson, having been detailed to keep watch and see that cycle users are complying with all regulations.

WORKS PLAN IN ESQUIMALT

Council May Institute Extensive Construction Project This Year

Prospects of Esquimalt instituting a programme of public works similar to that being executed in the municipality of Saanich, loomed at yesterday evening's meeting of the Esquimalt Council, when in presenting the 1934 estimates no provision was made for future relief in the municipality.

With the allotment by the federal government of $50,000,000 for public works it is expected that certain projects will be carried out in Esquimalt. Failing this, there is a possibility of the municipality seeking loan from the provincial government at a low rate of interest for the purpose of launching an extensive works programme.

Reeve Alexander Lockley, in speaking on the matter of relief felt that some permanent work should be done, and favored the establishment of permanent sidewalks, sewer projects and road work.

There were three ways to approach the problem, the chief executive said. The municipality could carry on as it is now doing, it could borrow from the provincial government for a programme of public works, or the council could throw up its hands and leave the matter of relief in the municipality with the government.

THE SCREEN

MYSTERY FILM AT DOMINION

Robert Montgomery Has Leading Role in "Mystery of Mr. X" Opening To-day

A new and exciting picture opens to-day at the Dominion Theatre. It is a murder mystery thriller of the first water, a product of Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer entitled "Mystery of Mr. X."

Robert Montgomery stars in the role of Revel, suave gentleman crook. Elizabeth Allan is his leading lady. She is Jane, daughter of the chief commissioner of Scotland Yard—which in itself some idea of the scope of the new film.

"Based on the Crime Club novel, 'Mystery of the Dead Police,' by Philip MacDonald, it is an exciting picture form as it was in the widely read novel. Edgar Selwyn did a surpassing good job of direction.

The picture is concerned chiefly with the hair-raising machinations of the murder "X," who consistently notifies the newspapers by postcard when he is about to strike, then laments at them later. London policemen are his victims and all the vast resources of Scotland Yard are shown focused on activities for his arrest.

"Wharf Angel" To Open To-morrow

A hard heart softened by love born in San Francisco's colorful old Barbary Coast, a hero as masterful as he is tender, another fighting man maddened by jealousy and a denouement as thought provoking as the gripping theme of the story—all these serve to make breathless entertainment of Paramount's "Wharf Angel."

The picture, which recreates one of the world's most colorful legends, is an excellent vehicle for such able players as Victor McLaglen, Preston Foster and Allison Skipworth, and marks the screen debut of Dorothy Dell, famous singing star of Ziegfeld Follies and radio fame.

Miss Dell reveals herself as an actress of unusual charm and understanding, and acting herself in a different role with all the finesse of a screen veteran.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

John Barrymore, credited by scribes with being Hollywood's most dotting father, is fittingly enough steps into a screen father role in his new RECO-Radio Picture, "Long Lost Father," featuring Helen Chandler and Dorothy Dell, and being shown to-day at the Playhouse Theatre.

Barrymore portrays Miss Chandler's father as the night club manager of a London cabaret. He meets his daughter after a lapse of twenty years, when she comes to dance in his establishment, and discovers that she has been in the hands of a man for abandoning her as an infant.

Coming to Empire In Block of Ice

The Mystic Byrd, coming from Port Angeles by steamer, shipped in a 700-pound block of ice, will appear on the stage of the Empire Theatre April 25. Inadvertently announced in a previous issue as having charge of this unique shipment, the Sands Mortuary Limited to-day announced they had never made any arrangements for this as it was not in keeping with the conduct of their business.

EMPIRE THEATRE

No music in the world is more pleasing than that of the South Sea Isles when it is correctly presented. Frankie McPhalen and his Hawaiian ensemble, coming with the "Melody Parade," all-star revue, at the Empire Theatre this week, have made a thorough study of this dreamy, delightful melody, and will offer it in all its natural beauty.

Frankie McPhalen himself is a master of the steel guitar, and many of his specialties are uniquely attractive. Frankie McPhalen's Hawaiian ensemble will undoubtedly transport Victorian audiences back to the enchanting, romantic South Sea Isles, if only for a little while.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Like Lewis Milestone, Jack Buchanan has the reputation of sticking to his friends through the years. The result is that each new stage or screen production made by the star

Major Ball Teams Start Long Chase

Sixteen Clubs in American National Leagues Open Campaign That Leads to World Series in September; Giants and Washington Favored

New York, April 17.—For the fifty-ninth time, the National League plunged into the opening of the new baseball season to-day and for the fifty-ninth time not one of the eight clubs would admit the possibility of finishing last.

Forecasts of clearing skies in the east and fair weather in the middle west indicated all four opening games would be played, with a turnout of some 100,000 baseball-hungry fans.

Whatever the final outcome, President John Arnold Heydler and the owners as well as the fans expected a real financial recovery after several lean years.

If the New York Giants fail to get the same brilliant pitching that was responsible for their amazing triumph of 1933, the experts selected the Chicago Cubs, bolstered by the acquisition of Chuck Klein, the Pittsburgh Pirates, St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves as potential pennant-winners, with the well-known "breakers" as the determining factor.

The Bears' principal opposition, as it looks now, will come from the Rochester Red Wings, one of the St. Louis Cardinals' "Tama," the Buffalo Bisons, who won the championship in the playoffs, and perhaps the Baltimore Orioles at Baltimore, and Montreal against the Chiefs at Syracuse.

Like their major league brethren, International club owners are hoping for a much better "break" financially this season than has been their lot for several years.

A change has been made in the playoff system whereby only the first four clubs in the final standings, no matter whether all four are from the northern, southern section, will qualify for the post-season.

Last year the two northern and two southern leaders participated in the playoffs.

Chicago, April 17.—The American League joined in big-time baseball, rousing opening chorus to-day, with no less than seven of the eight clubs harboring honest hopes of making pennant music next September.

Deprived by rain of opening, the campaign yesterday at Washington, Boston's new deal Red Sox and the champion Senators were in Boston to-day to start even with the rest of the league.

MINOR LEAGUE TO COMMENCE

Clubs in International Baseball Loop Swing Into Action To-morrow

New York, April 17.—The International League begins its fifty-first season to-morrow with the Newark Bears once more apparent to the club to beat.

Backed by the immense resources of the parent New York Yankees, the Bears, under the new management of Bob Shawkey, will put another powerful team on the field despite the loss of four "key men" from the ensemble which easily led the league during the regular season last year only to meet with surprising elimination in the new playoff system which decided the champions.

The Bears' principal opposition, as it looks now, will come from the Rochester Red Wings, one of the St. Louis Cardinals' "Tama," the Buffalo Bisons, who won the championship in the playoffs, and perhaps the Baltimore Orioles at Baltimore, and Montreal against the Chiefs at Syracuse.

Deprived by rain of opening, the campaign yesterday at Washington, Boston's new deal Red Sox and the champion Senators were in Boston to-day to start even with the rest of the league.

Expert opinion figures Washington to land the title again, with the New York Yankees and perhaps the Red Sox furnishing the foremost opposition. Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago rank as likely possibilities.

While the experts failed to include Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics as a threat, the seventy-two-year-old schemer thinks his team is "going somewhere." Only Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Browns has failed to hint at expectations of being up there, but he can't see the Browns finishing last in this year's campaign.

The weather behaving, around 30,000 fans were expected at to-day's four openers. The Yankees and Athletics at Philadelphia, the Red Sox and White Sox at the same number to watch St. Louis and Cleveland at Cleveland, and 15,000 for the delayed Washington-Boston entertainment.

London, April 17.—An offer of $100,000 has been made to the Aga Khan for a half-share in his classic colt Umidwar, who ran only once and won last season, a writer in the News Chronicle says. The offer has been refused.

It is understood at Newmarket that the offer was made on behalf of Lord Woolavington, who has already won the Derby with his eight-year-old filly, wants to win it again.

WHEN CHICAGO HAWKS WON STANLEY CUP

Above is shown a scene at the Chicago Stadium when 18,000 fans gathered to see the fourth game of the Stanley Cup hockey series between the Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings. The Hawks won 1 to 0 in overtime to take possession of the trophy, emblematic of the world professional championship. This is the first time the Hawks have won the trophy in seven years of campaigning in the N.H.L.

Murray Patrick Is Star In Hoop Win

Former Member of Victoria Blue Ribbons Leads Montreal Nationales to 37 to 36 Victory Over Dalhousie University in Eastern Final Halifax, April 17.—Montreal Nationales, winners of the Ontario-Quebec basketball title, won the first of a best-two-out-of-three series for the Eastern Canadian senior men's basketball crown here yesterday evening, defeating Dalhousie University Tigers, 37 to 36.

Playing a fast-breaking offensive type of ball, the Nationales fanned the Tigers with their speed and fast passing. The Dalhousie boys, who played a delayed attack, scored on long shots from outside the penalty line. Montreal's defense was too strong for them to do much close-in shooting.

Led by Murray Patrick, of last year's Pat Griffen, Victoria Blue Ribbons, and Pat Griffen, centre, playing in senior games for the first time this year, the Nationales continually left the Tigers off the floor, and scored on set-up shots.

Murray Patrick was the outstanding player on the floor, and after he was banished in the second period, for four personal fouls, his team resorted to stalling and simply controlling the ball, scoring only when they had perfect opportunities.

WALKING CHAMP IN RETIREMENT

T. Green, Winner of Championship at Last Olympic Games, Hangs Up Shoes

London, April 17.—Tommy Green, the greatest competitive distance walker of his day and the athletic idol of his home town, Belgrave, has said farewell to the road. The forty-year-old Olympic champion is taking up a business appointment which will leave him no time for training.

Smiling Tommy never competed in a road race until he was thirty-three, and then he proceeded to win more and more records than any other athlete in the world. He climaxed his career by winning the 50,000-metre walk at the Los Angeles Olympic Games in 1932. In that race, he over nearly thirty miles, most of the international field did not finish because of the intense heat.

Green won the famous thirty-three-mile London to Brighton race four times, and scored five successive triumphs in the Manchester-Blackpool event.

Melbourne, April 17.—Australia is acclaiming the cycling feat of O. J. Nicholson of this city in riding 4,993 miles in one year and breaking three world records.

Using a daily average speed of seventeen miles an hour, this sportsman, states Austral News, has averaged 120 miles a day since the beginning of 1933. The greatest daily distance was 350 miles.

Nicholson, who is twenty-four, showed Spartan endurance. He defied ill health and rode on in spite of three severe falls and three bouts of influenza. The ordeal cost him only an eight-pound loss in weight.

Glasgow, April 17.—Motherwell got to within a point of Glasgow Rangers at the top of the Scottish Football League, yesterday, by beating Hearts, 3 to 1. Rangers, however, have three games left and Motherwell only one.

Bought By New York Rangers

Alex Levinsky, a member of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey team, and sturdy defense player for the past four seasons, who has been purchased by the New York Rangers. Levinsky should be a great drawing card in New York, as he is the only Jewish player in the league, and was born in Syracuse.

CHOCOLATE IN COMEBACK WIN

Former Featherweight Champion Wins Tough Bout With Frankie Wallace

San Francisco, April 17.—Kid Chocolate, slim Cuban negro, started his drive back toward the top of the featherweight division in successful fashion yesterday evening when he scored a ten-round decision over Frankie Wallace, game little Cleveland brawler, in a brisk fight before a crowd of 4,000 fans.

The ebony kid, making a comeback after more than three months of inactivity, showered leather on his squatly opponent in fast flurries enough times to win Referee Toby Truitt's decision.

The battle was by no means one-sided. Wallace landed frequently with stinging rights to the jaw and in the seventh and tenth round he rocked "the kid" with right crosses. The former world featherweight champion, however, rallied fast and furiously to win five of the rounds.

Wallace had the shade in four sessions and the sixth was fairly even. Wallace put on a fine closing rally. He landed the hardest punches to have a bit the better of the ninth and continued to set the pace in the final session, which he topped off by rocking Chocolate with a right to the jaw.

Chocolate weighed 132 pounds and Wallace one pound more.

Bristol, Eng., April 17.—Capt. W. S. Don, president of the Somerset Rugby Union, and ex-chairman of the English Rugby Union, is dead at Castle Cary, aged fifty-seven.

Winnipeg, April 17.—Two National Hockey League teams, after ringing down the curtain on Winnipeg's 1933-34 hockey season, were on board a westbound train to-day with one game each in a two-game exhibition series here.

They divided the honors here yesterday evening when Detroit Red Wings took a 9 to 8 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs after bowling 15 to 8 to the Canadian division titlists in the first game Saturday.

More than 5,000 hockey fans watched the two teams go through their paces here for sixty minutes and then play better than four minutes overtime before Detroit eked out a win. The match was wide open from start to finish. Both squads went the limit for goals with a blinding display of speed.

Lightning-like passing attacks featured the game and both Will Cude in the Detroit net and the veteran George Hainsworth in the Toronto goal, were called on to stop shot after shot that looked certain to beat them. They had no chance on any of the drives that went up on the score sheet.

THOMPSON STARS

Paul Thompson, Chicago Black Hawks, bolstered the Red Wings in no small manner, scoring the goal that sent the game into overtime and following it up with the winning tally. Altogether he got three markers, as did Charlie Sands, another borrowed player, taken from the Leafs. Art Chapman from Boston Bruins scored two and Will Starr got the other Detroit goal. Charlie Conacher led the Leafs' marksmen with three goals, while Harvey Jackson, Andy Blair, Hec Kilrea, "Flash" Holt and Bill Thompson scored one each.

The two teams will play exhibition series at Trail and Vancouver. Teams follow:

THE Lone Wolf's Son

By Louis Joseph Vance

"Not two!" She deliberated, but with merry eyes. "I don't know, though. Maybe I'll change my mind. After all, sweet names are sweeter."

At this time one of the ship's officers poked his nose in at the door, trained it like a hunting dog on Lanyard, and followed it in—a trim young Frenchman with unimpeachable manners who none the less comforted himself, Lanyard thought, most mysteriously, for all the world like an amateur undertaker.

"Monsieur Lanyard, is it not?"

"I am he. Is there something?"

The captain presents his compliments and will be gratified if monsieur will do him the honor to consult with him—if convenient, at once.

Certainly, monsieur, Lanyard replied with an astonished smile. He had been prolonged without drawing one word of explanation. "Mademoiselle, I know, will excuse me." And gathering up his letters, he stuffed them in a pocket and followed out to the landing.

"But this way, if you please," the officer objected when Lanyard, supposing himself bidden to wait on the captain in his quarters, made to go out on deck. "Monsieur is expected in suite 39, A deck."

Lanyard stared.

"But that is Mrs. Innes Crozier's!"

"Yes, monsieur."

The officer, while still polite, put on a mullah look, and Lanyard after another instant shrugged and turned to the staircase.

What now? And why had his guide so pointedly neglected to mention, in Feno's presence, just where it was the captain was waiting?

Granted that his discretion might be of some significance, only on the assumption that he, Lanyard, was Fay Crozier's daughter—

The foot that Lanyard advanced to take the first step down was arrested by a hall from the deck.

"I say, old boy—half a minute," Lanyard gave perplexed eyes to the detective, who was lounging in the doorway, then humored a slight back of Crane's head and turned back.

"Forgive me, my friend—I am in some haste."

"I only wanted"—the American proudly drew out his card—"to ask if you had seen your son."

"Devil take you!" Lanyard retorted between a smile and a frown. "But it is not possible to cope with your acuteness."

"Don't hand me any applause. I only know what I'm told. I met the young man a while back coming out of your stateroom, and he said he was looking for his father."

"Many thanks," Lanyard recomposed his countenance. If you see him again, please tell him I could be in his company for luncheon."

Uncle Wiggly and the Trick

By HOWARD R. GARIS

While the Fox and the Bob Cat in the cave were getting ready to play a trick on Uncle Wiggly and his stones, the rabbit gentleman was sitting cozily in his hollow-stump bungalow. He had his trusty umbrella by his side and he was looking out of the window now and then for any sign of a rain shower.

Uncle Wiggly was jolly crank about rain showers and he would hop about and stand in one way or another. He even asked his friends to telephone him if they saw a shower near one of their houses and there was none near the bungalow.

"You aren't having very good luck to-day, are you, Mr. Longears?" asked Nurse Jane Pussycat. "Wiggly, as she went about dusting and saw the rabbit gentleman sitting in his easy chair, 'I don't see a sign of rain.'"

"I don't, either," answered Mr. Longears. "But if it doesn't rain here it may soon rain over at Twistytail's house, or at Uncle Wiggly's, or even at the cave of Mr. Whittaker, said the polar bear. I can go to either of those places and stand in the rain with my umbrella."

Nurse Jane shook the dust rag she had tied on the end of her tail and said: "You certainly are a queer rabbit."

By this time the Fox and the Bob Cat in the cave of the Fox were all ready to play their trick. They had made two piles of sticks and stones to use in the game. The rabbit gentleman, the kindness of Uncle Wiggly's friends in telephoning to him about showers and the way he was going to do the same to get him to come to their cave. Only, of course, I don't call the Fox and Bob Cat friends to Uncle Wiggly, do you? No, I thought not.

"Who of us is to telephone now on this trick business?" asked the Bob Cat of the Fox.

"You try it," answered the Fox. "You are quite good at imitating the voices of other animals. So you call Uncle Wiggly up, pretend to be Twistytail or the goat, and tell the rabbit there's a shower here waiting for him. Ha, ha, ha!"

"Ha, ha, ha!" the Bob Cat also laughed as, with the Fox, he looked at the pile of sticks and stones.

"There's a shower waiting for Uncle Wiggly all right, but not the kind he expects. Ha, ha, ha!"

Now the Bob Cat went to the telephone and he was soon connected with Uncle Wiggly in his hollow-stump bungalow.

"This is your friend Twisty," said the Bob Cat. "There's a shower in the woods near the bubbling spring. You know where that is."

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggly. "I do. But the bubbling brook spring is near the cave of the Fox. Much as I like to be in a shower I'm a little afraid to come to the one near the bubbling spring."

"Oh, there's no danger," said the Bob Cat, speaking in a deep, hoarse voice. "No danger at all. Come on over to the showering place and he blinked one eye at the Fox.

"What's the matter with your voice, Twisty?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Oh, I have a cold," said the tricky Bob Cat, pretending to be the pig gentleman. "But come on over to the showering place."

"All right, I'm coming," said the rabbit, hanging up the telephone. Not for a second did he think he was being tricked, but he was.

"Oh, are you going?" asked Nurse Jane, as she saw Uncle Wiggly pick up his umbrella.

"Yes," he answered. Twisty just telephoned me that there is a fine shower waiting for me near the bubbling spring. I'm going over there and give my umbrella a bath."

"Well, I hope it happens," said the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"What could happen?" laughed Uncle Wiggly. "A shower is only a shower. I love them!" So he started for the woods, hopping fast, and when he was almost there he met Mr. Twistytail.

"Hello, Twisty!" called the rabbit.

"Thank you for telephoning to me about that shower. Is it a hard one?"

"What's this about a shower?" grunted the pig. "I didn't telephone you. I've been away from home since early morning."

"Didn't you telephone me that there was a dandy shower out near the bubbling spring?" asked the rabbit.

"No, I didn't," grunted Mr. Twistytail.

"Oh, my goodness! Then it's a trick of the Bad Chap!" cried Uncle Wiggly. "It's a good thing I met you or I'd have gone to the bubbling spring and once there, I'd have been caught."

"Yes," said Mr. Twistytail. "I can guess the kind of shower the Bad Chap had ready for you—sticks and stones."

So the Fox and Bob Cat had all their trouble for nothing. The bunny never went near their cave, and soon after it showed real rain near his own bungalow, so he was happy. And if the refrigerator will kindly freeze the condensed milk and make it taste like ice cream, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly's sunshine.
